About the Book

In "Living Anthropology," acclaimed anthropologist Dr. Carlton Gaesser transports you to the remote highlands of Papua New Guinea, where he lived among the Huli and Hagen peoples for over a decade. This captivating memoir offers an unparalleled glimpse into their vibrant traditions, complex rituals, and unique worldviews.

Through vividly recounted experiences and stunning photographs, Dr. Gaesser provides an intimate portrayal of daily life, from traditional ceremonies and elaborate body paint to the challenges and triumphs of living in a rapidly changing society.

As you journey through the pages of "Living Anthropology," you'll not only encounter extraordinary individuals and witness their customs but also gain profound insights into the nature of our shared humanity. Dr. Gaesser's deep respect for the people and culture he studies shines through, encouraging readers to reflect on their own cultural biases and appreciate the diversity of human experience.

This book is an invaluable resource for anthropologists, students, and anyone fascinated by the richness and complexity of human culture. But it's also a captivating read for anyone seeking a deeper understanding of the human condition and the power of cross-cultural connections.
